The House resolved itself into committee of he whole, Mr. JOHNSON in the chair: upon the Il recoiled by Mr. DEHAVEN from the com mitte on Judiciary, to establish a conventional rate of interest, and amending the usury law.

Mr. GRAY was opposed to the establishment for conventional crate of interest. The Legis lature rejected such a bill two and four years since, when money was plenty, and now, why adopt such a measure when money has become searce? A man can I not buy a plough nor: cow without being compelled to incorporate in the note a monise to pay 10 per cent interest. The provisions of the bill were oppressive up in e poor man. Mr HAYCRAFT addressed the Senate in faor of the bill.

Mr. WALTON opposed the bill.

The bill was postponed until 12 o'clock toize a percentage, in the way of interest, equal to that now proposed to be legalized. He was opposed to brokers, private bankers, deposite banks, and all that kind of institutions, and under the present system, these concerns were supported to the disadvantage of the regularly chartered banks

Again, the establishment of a conventional rate of above six per cent, and equal to that allowed by adjoining States, would have the effect of keeping our capital at home. Douglas' Speech -- In another part of our pa per of to day we publish the commencement of the great speech recently delivered by Senator Douglas in the United States Senate, but we are prevented from publishing it entire, in one issue on account of the limited space allotted to us; it will be couclided in a day or two. Without com mitting ourself to the Senator's views, we have merely to say what will be admitted by all, that he defends his position in a musterly manner, and that it will be difficult for any one of the admin istration party to answer him satisfactorily.

CHINESE SUGAR CANE. -- Several days ago wo published a letter from Dr. Chipley, the human and efficient superintendent of the Eastern Lu natic Asylum, promising to send us specimens of molasses and brandy which he had manufactured out of the Sorghum Sacharinum. He has done so, and we will take great pleasure in showing his interesting and highly successful experiment to all persons who may call upon us for that pur pose. The molasses is far better than the ordi nary sugar house molasses, while the liquor is by no means "bad to take "

We couless that we take great interest in the Sorghum There are several questions, physical an I moral, to be solved by this plant; and we have watched the progress of the experiment with lively interest. The Sorghum is a plant which, ex amined by its vegetable appearances, would be called a sort of cross on the maize and cane, and its actual properties partake of the nature of both The sacch trine principle of the maize is held it a very low degree; in the sugar come in a very high degree. In the Sorghum, the saech trine matter approaches nearer that of the cane, than it does that of the unize. As the extent of ground over which it may be grown is very great, the cultivation very easy, and the dangers to whiel it is liable comparatively few, it is quite probable that in the Sorghum the saccharine matter may prove as profitable as in the cane, whose range is less, and whose exposure to loss is great er. This remains yet to be fully tested. We shall state here merely such facts as are reliable and may be taken as premises from which there sults of Sorghum culture may be inferred. One of the fullest experiments at manufacturing suga and molasses from the Sorghum, was made in Mahaving county, Ohio. An intelligent gentle man of that county says: "The Sorghum, or Chinese Sagar Cane, for the last year or two, has been experimented on quite extensively, and very satisfactorily. Mills have been constructed for crushing the stalks, and specimens of sugar and molasses manufactured therefrom were exhibited at our County Fair."

In Meigs county, Ohio, the average of Sorghum molasses per acre was about 200 gallous.

In Clermont county, of the same State, it was estimated that five hundred acres of the sngar cane was planted.

In Warren several persons tried the experi ment, and made molasses successfully. We men tion these facts as conclusive evidence that the Sor ghum may be successfully cultivated; that it will produce a very fair crop, and make both sugar and molasses. Tried by any test of growth and production the Sorghum is successful. There are two remaining questions not less important: First, Whether in competition with the tropical cane, both in the West Indies and the Pacific, it will be sufficiently profitable to induce extensive cultivation? And, second, Whether the distilla tion of Sorghum syrup will not draw it rather into the production of spirits, than that of sugar? - approval, but no obligation to submit the entire These problems remain to be tested.

In conclusion, we may congratulat try on two certainly established facts: The first, that a new and valuable plant has been successfully introduced. And, secondly, that whatever may be the commercial value of the Sorghum, as a great staple, the people have in it a resource against an extravagant price of sugar and molasses, which being, unlike the maple tree, an annual plant of quick growth, stands ready at any moment to supply the domestic demand.

The Sorghum is another of the numerous evidences, furnished by our gardens and our orehards, of the migratory nature of fruits and vegetables It is as foreign as the Persian peach in our midst, but may soon be as domestic. There is no reason why it should not be cultivated by those who de sire to produce their own syrup or sugar; but, on the other hand, is no more likely to supplant In dian corn than the tomato has the potatoe. Yet the tomato is a common and valuable vegetable We anticipate nothing wonderful from the Sorglum, but we think it will become an adopted and perhaps valuable plant.

THE CONCERT. We trust that no one will fail to go to the concert, to be given by the choir of the Presbyterian Church, at the Odd Fellows' Hall, to night. A rare musical treat may be expected, as besides the sweet voices of some of the most charming of the Frankfort fair ones, seve ral amateurs from the neighboring towns will add to the exquisite melody of the night's entertainment. We might add, too, that some expe rienced instrumental performers have volunteered their aid. By all means let all go to hear the "sweet singers" pour forth their soft, low, and ex quisitely musical notes in one rich harmony.

Foor Surgery .- We call particular attention to the advertisement of Dr. Thos. H. D'ALTON. which may be found in another column. He is now staying at the Mansion House, where he will take pleasure in administering relief to all per sons having bad corns, bunions, troublesome toenails, or other diseases of the feet, who may apply to him.

Only those who have been afflicted with corus can appreciate the good fortune of having them speedily eured, and that without pain; this Dr. D'Alton guarantees to do. Those who feel in terested in the matter can examine his testimomials, and as he has several from highly influential citizens of Frankfort, the public may feel as sured that there is no humbug about it

A Good Hir .- The Brown county Democrat, published at Georgetown, Ohio, has the following pointed hit, in its last issue:

New Devinition -If the Washington Union is

SENATOR DOUGLAS. OF ILLINOIS,

On the President's Message, delivered in the Senate of the United States, December 9, 1857.

On motion of Mr. DOUGLAS, the Senate re umed the consideration of the motion made by him yesterday, to print the President's message and accompanying documents, with fifteen thous and extra copies.

Mr. DOUGLAS said: Mr. Paesident: When yesterday the President's nessage was read at the Clerk's desk, I heard it but imperfectly, and I was of the impression that the President of the United States had approved and indorsed the action of the Lecompton eouvention in Kansas. Under that impression, felt it my duty to state that, while I concurred i the general views of the message, yet, so far as tention, I entirely dissented from it, and woul wail mysell of an early opportunity to state m easons for my dissent Upou a more careful an ritical examination of the message, I am rejoic Upou a more careful and ed to find that the President of the United States has not recommended that Congress shall pass a law to receive Kansas into the Union under the constitution formed at Lecompton. It is true hat the tone of the message indicates a willing iess on the part of the President to sign a bill, t ve shall see proper to pass one, receiving Kansa nto the Union under that constitution. But, sir is a fact of great significance, and worthy o consideration, that the President has refrained from any indorsement of the convention, and com any recommendation as to the course Con ress should pursue with regard to the constitu

The message of the President has made an ar gument—an unanswerable argument in my opin on—against that constitution, which shows clear y, whether intended to arrive at the result of ot, that, consistently with his views and his principles, he cannot accept that constitution .lle has expressed his deep mortification and lisappointment that the constitution itself has not been submitted to the people of Kansas for their acceptance or rejection. He informs us that he has unqualifiedly expressed his opinions on that subject in his instructions to Gov. Walker, assuming, as a matter of course, that the cousting the contractions is to be repealed to focal in the property of the course. ution was to be submitted to the people before it ould have any vitality or validity. He goe urther, and tells us that the example set by longress in the Minnesota case, by inserting ause in the enabling act requiring the constitu tion to be submitted to the people, ought to become uniform rule, not to be departed from hereafte nany case. On these various propositions agree entirely with the President of the Unite States, and I am prepared now to sustain that uniform rule which he asks us to pursue, in all other cases, by taking the Minuesota provision as nr example. I rejoice, on a careful perusal of the message o find so much less to dissent from than I wa nder the impression there was, from the hasty sading and imperfect hearing of the message i the first instance. In elfect, he refers that document to the Congress of the United States—as the Constitution of the United States refers it for us to decide upon it under our responsibility It is proper that he should have thus referred to us as a matter for congressional action, and not as an Administration or Executive measure tor the reason that the "Congress may admit nev States into the Union." Hence we find the Kan as question before us now, not as an Adminis ration measure, not as an Executive measure out as a measure coming before us for our fre action, without any recommendation or interference, directly or indirectly, by the Administration now in possession of the Federal Government. Sir. I propose to examine this question calmly and fairly, to see whether or not we can properly receive Kansas into the Union with the

The President, after expressing his regret and mortification and disappointment, that the consti-nation had not beeen submitted to the people in pursuance of his instructions to Governo Walker, and in pursuance of Governor Watker' assurance to the people, says, however, that by the Kansas Nebraska act the slavery question only was required to be referred to the people, and the remainder of the constitution was not thus re quired to be submitted. He acknowledges that, s a general rule, on general principles, the whole constitution should be submitted; but according to his understanding of the organic act of Kan sas, there was an imperative obligation to sub mit the slavey question for their approval or dis constitution. In other words, he regards the or-ganic act, the Nebraska bill, as having made ar exception of the slavery clause, and provided for contradistinguished from Federal questions, should be decided. Sir, permit me to say, with profound respect for the President of the United States, that I conceive that on this point he has ommitted a fundamental error, an error which ies at the foundation of his whole argument on his matter. I can well understand how that dis tinguished statesman came to fall into this error He was not in the country at the time the Nebras ka bill was passed; he was not a party to the con troversy and the discussion that took place during s passage. He was then representing the hono nd the dignity of the country with great wisdon and distinction at a foreign court. Thus deepl engrossed, his whole energies were absorbed in onducting great diplomatic questions that divert d his attention from the mere territorial ques ons and discussions then going on in the Senate and the House of Representatives, and before the people at home. Under these circumstances, he may well have fallen into an error, radical and fundamental as it is, in regard to the object of the Nebraska hill and the principles asserted

Now, sir, what was the principle enuuciated by the authors and supporters of that bill when it was brought forward? Did we not come beorc the country and say that we repealed the Missouri restriction for the purpose of substitu-ting and carrying out as a general rule the great rinciple of self-government, which left the peo-de of each State and each Territory free to form and regulate their domestic institutions in their own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States? In support of that proposition it was argued here, and I have argued it wherever I have spoken in various States of the Union at home and abroad, every where I have endeav ored to prove that there was no reason why an ex eption should be made in regard to the slavery uestion. I have appealed to the people if we did not all agree, men of all parties, that all other local and domestic questions, should be submitted to the people. I said to them, "We agree that the people shall decide for themselves what kind of a judiciary system they will have; we agree that the people shall decide what kind of a shool system they will establish; we agree that the people shall determine for themselves what kind of a banking system they will have, or whether they will have any banks at all; we agree that the people may decide for themselves what shall be the elective franchise in their respec-tive State; they shall decide for themselves what shall be the rule of taxation and the principles upon which their finance shall be regulated; we universal, in its application to all matters which were local and domestie, and not national or Fed-For this reason was the language emplo ed which the President has quoted; that th lighth section of the Missouri act, commonly afted the Missouri compromise, was repealed be ause it was repugnant to the principle of non ntervention established by the compromise meas ires of 1850, "it being the true intent and mean ng of this act not to legislate slavery into an Territory or State, nor to exclude it therefrom, hut to leave the people thereof perfectly free to torm and regulate their domestic institutions in their own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States." We repealed the Missouri striction because that was confined to slavery That was the only execption there was to the general principle of self government. That ex ention was taken away for the avowed, and exress purpose of making the rule of self-govern ient general and universal, so that the people utions in their own way.

Sir, what would this boasted principle of pop plar sovereignty have been worth, if it applied only to the negro, and did not extend to the white uan? Do you think we could have aroused the tympathies and patriotism of this broad Repubc, and have earried the presidential election ast year in the face of a tremendous opposition n the principle of extending the right of self-gov rnment to the negro question, but denying it as to In the relations affecting white men? No, sir. We roused the patriotism of the country and carried he election in defense of that great principle thich allowed all white men to form and regu ate their domestic institutions to suit them selves—institutions applieable to white men as well as to black men—institutions applicable to rcemen as well as to slaves-institutions conerning all the relations of life, and not the mere altry exception of the slavery question. Sir, 1 tave spent too much strength and breath, and nealth, too, to establish this great principle in the opular heart, now to see it fritted away by bring ng it down to an exception that applies to the legro, and does not extend to the benefit of the white man. As I said before, I can well imagine ow the distinguised and eminent patriot and tatesman now at the head of the Government ell into the error-for error it is, radical, funda iental-and, if Increavered in, subversive of that platform upon which he was elevated to the Presidency of the United States

Then, if the President be right in saying that, by the Nebraska bill, the slavery question must be submitted to the people, it follows inevitably hat every other clause of the constitution mus lso be submitted to the people. The Nebraska ill said that the people should be left "perfectly ree to form and regulate their domestic institu ion, not the Maine fiquour law question, not the banking question, not the school question, not he railroad question, but "their domestic insti meaning each and all the questions which are local, not national, State, not Federal.

arrive at the conclusion that the principles nunciated so boldly, and enforced with so much ibility by the President of the United States. equire us, out of respect to him and the platform on which he was elected, to send this whole uestion back to the people of Kansas, and enaole them to say whether or not the constitution which has been framed, euch and every clause f it, meets their approbation.

The President, in his message, has made an nanswerable argument in favor of the principl vhich requires this question to be sent back. It stated in the message, with more clearness and orce than any language which I can eommand ut I ean draw your attention to it and refer you to the argument in the message, hoping that you will take it as a part of my speech—as expressing my idea more forcibly than I am able 10 express it. The President says that a question of reat interest, like the slavery question, canno e fairly decided by a convention of delegates for the reason that the delegates are elected in listricts, and in some districts a delegate is eleced by a small majority; in others by an over vhelming majority, so that it often happens that majority of the delegates are one way, while majority of the deregate and other way; and herefore it would be unfair and inconsistant with he great principle of popular sovereignty, to al ow a body of delegates, not representing the opular voice, to establish domestic institution or the mass of the people. This is the President's argument to show that you cannot have a air and honest decision without submitting it to he popular vote. The same argument is usive with regard to every other question as well as with regard to slavery.

But, Mr. President, it is intimated in the message that although it was an unfortunate circumstance, much to be regretted, that the Lecompton onvention did not submit the constitution to the because the convention was called by a Territo-ial Legislature which had been repeatedly re-pognized by the Congress of the United States as a legal body. I beg Senators not to fall into ar He does not say, he does not mean, that this convention had ever heen recognized by the Congress of the United States as legal or valid on the contrary, he knows, as we here know that during the last Congress I reported a bil rom the Committee on Territories to authorize the people of Kansas to assemble and form constitution for themselves. Subsequently, the Senator from Georgia (Mr. Toombs) brought for ward a substitute for my bill, which, after having been modified by him and myself in consultation was passed by the Senate. It is known in the country as "the Toombs bill." It authorized the eople of Kansas Territory to assemble in con vention and form a constitution preparatory to their admission into the Union as a State.— That bill, it is well known, was defeated in the House of Representatives. It matters not, for the purpose of this argument, what was the rea son of its defeat. Whether the reason was political one; whether it had reference to the ther existing contest for the Presidency; whether it was to keep open the slavery question; whether i was a conviction that the hill would not be fairly carried out; whether it was because there were not people enough in Kansas to justify the for mation of a State—no matter what the reason was, the House of Representatives refused to ass that bill, and thus denied to the people of Kansas the right to form a constitution and State government at this time. So far from the Conress of the United States having sanctioned o egalized the convention which assembled at Lemptou, it expressly withheld its assent. assent has not been given, either in express terms or hy implication; and being withheld, this Kansas constitution has just such validity and just such authority as the Territorial Legislature of Kansas could impart to it without the assent, and n opposition to the known will of Congress. Now, sir, let me ask what is the extent of the authority of a Territorial Legislature as to calling a constitutional eouvention without the assent of Congress? Fortunately this is not a new uestion; it does not now arise for the first time. When the Topcka constitution was presented to the Senate nearly two years ago, it was referred to the Committee on Territories, with a variety of measures relating to Kansas. The committee made a full report upon the whole subject. That report reviewed all the irregular cases which had occurred in our history in the admission of new signee that they may decide for themselves the States. The committee acted on the supposition that whenever Congress had passed an enabling child, guardian and ward; and why should we not that whenever Congress had passed an enabling act authorizing the people of a territory to form a State constitution, the convention was regular, and possessed all the authority which Congress had out of that great rule of self-government which applies to all the other relations of life?" The proposition in the Nebraska bill was to the self-government to the self-government which applies to all the other relations of life?" The proceeding was irregular and void, unless vitality was imparted to it by a subsequent act of Coughas, the self-government was imparted to it by a subsequent act of Coughas, the self-government was imparted to it by a subsequent act of Coughas, the self-government was imparted to it by a subsequent act of Coughas, the self-government was imparted to it by a subsequent act of Coughas, the self-government was imparted to it by a subsequent act. show that the Missouri restriction, prohibiting gress adopting and confirming it. The friends of the people from deciding the slavery question for themselves, constituted an exception to a general rule, in violation of the principle of self-so irregular but that Congress could cure the government, and hence that that exception should be repealed, and the slavery question, like all other questions, submitted to the people to be decided for themselves.

They cited a variety of cases, amongst others the Arkansas case. In my report, sanctioned by every member of the Committee on Territories, New Derivition—If the Washington Chion is to be taken as a Democratic organ, we must revise and correct our Dictionaries, as thus:

Democracy—Depricing the people of the right of suffrage, when you know they will vote against be repealed, and the slavery question, like an other questions, submitted to the people to be decided for themselves.

tion, it removed an odious exception which he- hy General Jackson's administration, and enunfore existed. Its whole object was to aholish elated in the opinion of Mr. Attorney General that odious exception, and make the rule general, Butler, a part of which opinion was copied into the report and published to the country at the time.

THE UNITED STATES AND VENEZUELA.-It is manifest from the allusion contained in the President's Message to the state of our relations with Venezuela, that he is resolved to adopt energetic measures to obtain redress from that Government for the outrages committed upon our citizens .-The nature of the wrong complained of is sub stantially as follows:-In the year 1854 a party of sixty Americans, who owned and occupied an island called Avis Island, more than three hundred miles from the Venezuelan coast, and who were quietly engaged in collecting guano, were forcibly expelled from the island by order of the Venezuela Government, their property sold and the proceeds appropriated by the perpetrators of this outrage. Representations were immediately made to the Venezuelan authorities by the United States Minister at Caraeas, of the lawless nature of the seizure of the island, and the robbery of the property of American citizens, whose oceu pation of the island, and prosecution of their business, had been sanctioned by the United States; but these representations have been persistently disregarded, although frequently and urgently renewed. It is rumored that in case the peremp tory summons which our Minister has been in structed to deliver to the Executive at Caracas be disregarded, a vessel of war will be orded to continue to negotiate at the point where diploma ey has failed, and to make scizures of Venezue lan property in satisfaction of the debt due to our fellow citizens for damage and loss in conse quence of the act of Seuior Planas.

DISTRESSING CASUALTY.-We very much regret to learn that on Saturday evening last, a son of Mrs Emily Burbridge, of Scott county, a boy of ten years of age, whilst playing with some other little boys near the residence of his grand father, James F. Robinson, Esq., was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of one of his companions. A negro man who was near at hand took him in his arms and proceeded with him to the house, but the child expired be fore the negro arrived at the home of his bereaved grandparent. Juo. B. Burbridge, the father of the boy, was killed in a similar manner about ten years ago. The accomplished mother of the child was in Louisville at the time the accident oeeurred, and the shock to her was all the more terrible from the melancholy reminiscences it necessarily revived. She has the warm sympathies of her numerous friends in this her great
